Atlanta Market Poised for Post Pandemic Surge

The Atlanta Market Summer show is set to take place next month, and vendors are looking forward to welcoming their retail trading partners back to collaborate on stocking their stores with an exciting selection of products. All indications point to an exceptionally robust show. In the January edition earlier this year, attendance was already up 158% from the previous show, with retailers attending from 49 states, 21 countries along with DC, Puerto Rico, and the US Virgin Islands. Now with the Pandemic fading into the background, Atlanta Market is anticipating welcoming many more retailers back. Naturally, there will be products destined for holiday gift giving, but also an eclectic mix of selections to make the next gathering of family and friends even more special. As customers return to the store for in person shopping, eye appeal will be very important because it will encourage impulse buying. As you can see in the following pages, there are a fresh new batch of great products that will provide the much needed point of purchase attraction that will welcome your returning customers, and remind them why they enjoy returning time and time again.
